REMOVAL OF THE PROV. GOVERNMENT.

The political curfew bell has tolled the knell of parting Provincialism, and the decree is at last published ordering the 'posse comitatus' of the Government of Buenos Aires to move out to La Plata before the end of the present month. As this edict was anticipated, its results have been overspeculated on, and although it is sad to part, we have been so long preparing to say good-bye to the Provincial Government of Buenos Aires, that now we feel the shock as little as the furniture vans that carry the Government house luggage to the railway station.

The wooden houses will be all put together and the various public offices in La Plata roofed in before Lady Day, so that we may surmise sufficient accommodation will be afforded the Government employees, to save them from the inclemencies of the weather or sleeping in the open streets upon 'recados.' One of our colleagues states that, to meet the exigencies of the new Capital, all the clerks of the Government House will live 'en garcon,' no wives or children will be admitted, until more houses are built or more wooden ones arrive from the United States.

Perhaps the most objective good likely to arise from this political hegira will be the Sunday pic-nics to La Plata we all promise ourselves when our friends and acquaintances move out. Buenos Aires every Sunday and holiday, will be as deserted as was Carthage when old Marius visited it, and the improved moral tone of those weekly fresh air excursions will possibly generate a sympathy at present denied to our ex-federalized fellow citizens.

Nor should we blame the Government clerks if they fly to the bowers of La Plata, where duty lies carelessly smiling at fame, since in all probability if they remained in the city they would be cashiered; and if we are to credit but one half of what we hear of the future of the wooden house town, the sacrifice now imposed upon those gentlemen will be amply recouped by the great advantages which as first settlers they secure in the destined commercial and political capital of this province.

Far from the madding crowd of Buenos Aires, these Government employees will have ample leisure to read up and improve their minds, and when it comes to their turn to run for Deputy to Congress, many of our public men may prepare to retire to private life, to make room for the deep readers and deep thinkers of La Plata. We have this fact each day evidenced before our eyes; the Provincianos, who come down to Congress, are invariably the best read men, since, away up in their native provinces they have time and leisure for study, which here in Buenos Aires is out of the question. We therefore congratulate those gentlemen on their removal to La Plata; in an economical point of view they are the gainers, since they can live out there for less than one half what it costs in Buenos Aires, whilst in a moral and intellectual light they may by application and study reach a distinction which they never could hope for in the old Government House in Calle Moreno.

THE MEAT CARGO.

The meat cargo is likely to supply the papers of Buenos Aires with good food for editorials. The subject is one of the most surpassing interest for this country, and likely when the trade becomes developed to change everything in it. With much pleasure we give our readers an article from the Prensa on this great question; and although we will not go so far as our colleague in his frozen meat enthusiasm, or suppose that it will jump the trade of the Plate from 135 millions to five hundred million pats per annum, still we admit, that it is our fixed belief, before the end of the present year we shall be shipping from 30, to 40,000 frozen carcases per month, and next year we shall probably double that figure. The Prensa says:—

While on his official trip to Australia, Don Ricardo Newton had occasion to explain to several sheep breeders there how superior to Australia the Argentine Republic is for rearing and fattening sheep; and the data he gave them have now induced five large proprietors in that country to come here and judge for themselves as to the veracity of his statements. They have just arrived in the Neva, amongst them Messrs. Mair Leamouth and McGaw, all prominent Australian estancieros.

Without the slightest doubt, this is an important event for our country, as, if these gentlemen find that what has been said about it is correct, as they most certainly will find it, it is probable that they will start estancias either in the province of Buenos Aires or in others, and that they will introduce a practical system that will be of great benefit to us, as there is nothing like visible example for convincing everybody. One tangible fact is worth any number of written theories, as those who read are few, and when they do are hard to convince of the truth of what they read. It is useless to publish the fact that Australia with a population of three millions, the same as that of the Argentine Republic, has a home and foreign trade of 500 millions of hard dollars, or almost five times our trade, and that, consequently, a different system of work from ours must rule there. Nobody pays any attention to this fact, because it is not immediately under our eyes. But, when the day comes that we see a foreigner working on a different system from ours, and succeeding with it, then there will be no lack of imitators and propounders of the new doctrine, and the country will make a gigantic stride forward.

The total value of the trade of Australia represents for three millions of people the same figure as that of Denmark, Sweden, Norway and pain put together, that is to say, of 25 millions of Europeans, which shows a production and consumption eight times larger for the former than the latter.

This fact claims attention. The total tonnage that entered and left Australian ports last year was 6,000,000 tons, or double all that England possessed fifty years ago. Naturally, the imports exceed the exports, as Australia is not as yet a manufacturing country, but it is perhaps on the eve of becoming so, thanks to a project now on foot. It is calculated that Australia, including Tasmania and New Zealand, possesses 70 millions of sheep, and within 20 years will have over 100 millions. The problem for the Australian Association of sheepbreeders now is to find markets for this wool. London, Antwerp, Havre, Marseilles and Antwerp are not sufficient. They have cast their eyes on China, and it is also proposed to erect large wool factories in Australia itself. "The Chinese," they say, "must learn how to make woolen and cotton cloth"—that is, be it well understood, with Australian wool and Chinese cotton. This will ensure an outlet for the thousands of bales of wool which they are afraid may be left on their hands in the future.

In order to explain the advantages of this combination to the Chinese the Association already referred to intends to send an agent to Shanghai. If the Celestials, who are reputed to be very Conservative, cannot be persuaded, then the second plan—establishing factories in Australia—will be resorted to. To make a beginning, the owners of 35 millions of sheep will subscribe a farthing per sheep.

As may be seen, this is the democratization of credit and the spirit of association which we have so often recommended for adoption in this country.

To return: The Australian breeders, meanwhile make every exertion to keep their wool up to its reputation. A pure Merino ram was lately sold in Melbourne for 16,000 hard dollars, and the gentlemen who have just arrived here say that the buyer refused 20,000 for it a few days after. This reminds us of Jason's famous ram with the golden fleece.

In the same way the export of preserved meat is pushed forward, and here, for some time past, we hear of large steamers calling at Rio, their holds full of frozen mutton and beef, on the way to England.

We have very often referred in these columns to this same question, for which this country is now fully ripe, and which, had our words been listened to, would have been settled long ago, as we have more advantages than Australia, save and excepting our way of doing things, and the spirit of association which we lack so much. We must at once awake from our lethargy. From all quarters they are knocking at our doors, yet we remain deaf to the call. Only yesterday, the Standard published a letter from London (reproduced by an evening colleague) which contains the very same arguments we have so often advanced, and refers to the arrival in England of the frozen meat sent from Campana and San Nicolas. The only fault found with this meat was the light weight of the legs of mutton, as the English markets are accustomed to legs of 10 and 11 lbs. whereas those from the Plate only weigh five or six pounds. This is nothing against an article that is sold by weight, and the English market will soon get accustomed to Argentine mutton just as it is, whilst our estancieros should try in the future to produce English breeds of sheep in the South camps, which are better suited to them than the North. Argentine mutton will find even a still better market on the Continent, where English habits do not prevail, and where the merino mutton fetches a higher price than the English. The letter to the Standard likewise refers to the war declared against Argentine meat by the home breeders and the Australians. This is natural. Every man tries to defend his own market and business. It is a question of commercial competition, to be met with in every branch of production, and which holds good with meat as well as everything else.

But this is rather an incentive than otherwise. No one wages war with a worthless enemy. If the Argentine meat was worthless, no notice would be taken of it, any more than of jerked beef or all the samples of chemically preserved meat; whereas our frozen meat has been sold at ten cents per pound in England and fifteen in France, from the former cargoes sent. These prices are more likely to rise than fall, as, when the consumer becomes convinced that the Argentine mutton (We leave beef on one side for the present) affords him quite as good nourishment as that of his own country, and costs him much less, he will buy it in preference, the demand will increase, and the price will rise. This is the general law of trade.

Once we have practically proved the good quality of our meat, it will be necessary to show that we can send it on a large scale, and do with our meat what we have done with our products. To effect this, it will be indispensable to appeal to the spirit of association and not wait till all the trade falls into the hands of foreigners. As the writer of the letter to the Standard very well says, they will send us everything we require for it, once they see that those here who are directly interested in the matter are bestirring themselves to push on the new business. This is exactly what we have often said before. It is not our fault that we were not believed. Most precious time has been lost; but, better late than never when a good thing is in question. Let us put our shoulders to the wheel at once. Everything is ready; all that is required is to orgauise our means of action. The preliminary steps are already taken, and we can beat the others, in every point of view, provided we care to do so. We have everything ready to our hand, but we must get the indispensable elements together, and employ competent men, as it would be truly shameful if we took the wrong road and broke down.

Those who have followed closely what we have said in these columns for some time past will see that what they are now telling us from abroad is just what we have repeated so often that we have been charged with being tiresome. Now that time has proved that we were right, it is but fair to give us credit for it, as in advocating reforms vested interests must suffer, and they, naturally, try to defend themselves by every means in their power.

The general adoption of meat freezing will prove an inexhaustible source of wealth to the country, and perhaps many years will not elapse till we shall have, like Australia, a home and foreign trade of 500 millions of hard dollars.

THE CHARMING SOUTH.

III.

The camps of Curumalan are considered the best in the South and far superior to the lands lying to the south of the mountain range; in fact, no greater contrast can be imagined than that which one witnesses in the change of soil and of pasturage as you cross from the North to the Southern parts of the Curumalan range. The luxuriance of pasturage in Curumalan must be seen to be believed; the grasses grow up in tangled exuberance up to the saddle girth; 'alfalfa,' or a species of the lucerne, called 'trevol de alfa,' with a little yellow flower, grows in great abundance in the low lands, and very few of the highlands, if we except the very mountains, can be considered bad camp. The black mould is deep and water is near the surface; no soil could be more prolific than that of these beautiful green valleys, and it will scarcely be credited that in many parts the alluvial coating reaches a depth of six and more feet. Wells have been sunk where the black earth stretched to the water surface; water is found in low lands at from two to six yards from the surface; on the highlands the depth depends on the elevation of the lands, and the pick-axe must be used to break through the "tosca" which has a brittle, slate-formation in these parts, and a light color, often like lime-stone. This "tosca" is crushed and is useful for building purposes.

One of the great advantages of Curumalan is the abundance of water; mountain streams rush down from the range, meandering through the valleys, in parts hidden by high grass and reeds, in parts like bright silver streaks stretching across the plain as far as the eye can reach, carrying life in their bosom and lending to the picturesque surroundings that refreshing charm which the greater part of the pampa lacks; the waters are crystalline, you can count every pebble in their beds; and nothing is more delicious on a summer day than to quaff this delicious water, free from all taste of nitrates and other salts that the saline deposits of the country give to nearly all the water of the province. The Pigue, the Currumalan Grande, the Sauce Corto, the 27 de Diciembre, etc, add millions to the value of Currumalan and are the greatest blessing in a country where water is at a premium and droughts are the bane of man and beast. Plenty of good water means fat stock on the camp, and water appears to have a greater effect in fattening than grass; the very fat condition of animals on the Rio Negro, for instance, in spite of droughts that last at times a twelve-month, is due to the water of the river; both cattle and sheep in Currumalan are in splendid condition, and the beef reminds one of the fat meat in England. Stock hereabouts thrives amazingly, and the sleek, fat appearance of the "rodeos" was striking.

Salt lakes, salt rivers, salt mines are a special feature of the plains of the Republic; to the West, North and South, in all the plains, in fact, nitrates abound, and even Currumalan is not free from these saline characteristics, as I had occasion to witness by the 'gramilla,' called 'salitrosa' in the North, and which grows in some of the low lands of Currumalan; animals, as a rule, like this grass which has very fattening properties, but there is very little of it on this great property—a recommendation rather than anything else. Currumalan otherwise is fortunately very free of all salt deposits. In the valleys, as a rule, rich soft grasses shoot up with the greatest luxuriance; alfilerillo, alfalfa, trevol de olor, trevol de alfa, cebadilla, etc., grow in abundance, apparently untouched, as the stock on the estancia is as yet small for the extent of ground covered by this immense estate. The pastures about the Pigué, where the new colony is being started, and about the Sauce Corto, are splendid, and ten sheep could be put to the acre in these parts; such beautiful camps are seldom seen in the South, and are generally the valuable patrimony of the fine North camps; two years ago, nevertheless, many of these splendid tracts were covered with coarse grasses; the change has been very sudden, and the process of transformation and refining is advancing rapidly.

The Pigué is one of the most beautiful parts of Currumalan; here the hills are higher, the valleys deeper, and the streams larger. Here ten leagues have been set apart for the French colony, about 6 leagues distant from the estancia house; the surroundings are most picturesque and the peasant from Normandy can recall scenes from home as he gazes on the gently sloping hills, teeming with beauty, and on the mountains that frown in the background and whose tops are hidden in the clouds that seem to hang around the range perpetually. Labour here can look forward to a bright reward; every drop of sweat from the farmer's brow will meet with ample return, and Mr Cabanette, the pioneer of the colony, has had a most happy idea in choosing this lovely site. In a few years all these hills will be covered with smiling farms, wheat fields, and orchards and vine-yards. The grape in these parts must grow with luxuriance; in Bahia Blanca the results are staggering; the vine in this country grows with more vigor and with more rapidity than in the most favored parts of France; the hills of Currumalan may yet turn out the best Burgundy in the world; the future of the industry is as yet hidden in the womb of time.

Currumalan is a great principality; it is already the greatest estancia in South America, and the owner has one of the finest properties in the world; nature has done everything up to the present; now the hand of man must turn to account the bounty of nature and leave the stamp of civilization on a territory which is barbarous in all its splendour and wealth; the steel rails of the Southern Railway, the four stations, the immense wire fence, the splendid buildings of the estancia and the embryonic colony, managed by Mr Dress, have already worked a great change, but several years must elapse before the great principality of the South is complete. Everything is on a grand scale, and when complete the property will certainly be the finest South of the Line.

THE LIEBEG EXTRACT OF MEAT FACTORY!

The Liebeg Extract of Meat Factory at Fray Bentos is, I believe, the largest of its kind in the world, and, as such, a description of what it is at the present day cannot be uninteresting to your readers.

Its having been placed where it is in the Republica Oriental is a great benefit conferred upon estancieros here, and its near proximity to the port of Fray Bentos has been the means of making this little town what it is at present, the busiest, for its size, of any that I have seen in the Banda Oriental.

I had long promised myself a visit to the factory, Mr. Croker, the manager, having kindly invited me especially to do so about a couple of years ago. My visit was decided upon, "on the spur of the moment," so to say, as a few minutes before starting I had not the slightest intention of going. I had gone to Palmira to take the steamer for Buenos Aires, and I found when I got there that there was none that night, and that I should have to wait until next night. A steamer going up river, the "Cosmos," coming in sight at the time, a "happy thought" struck me, and I ran across to the agency to see if I could go up with it to Fray Bentos, and, at the same time be able to see the Factory. Finding I should have a whole day there, I took out my ticket and went on board, arriving at Fray Bentos at 11 p.m.

Determined to make a day of it, next day I started for the Factory at half-past seven, a.m., getting there in less than half an hour. There is a coach that plies between the town and the factory all day, fare one real. But I did not go by this conveyance, for being unacquainted with the locality, I was endeavouring to find my way along, and inquiring of a man with a trap the way to the Factory, he answered, "I am going there, jump in and I'll take you," so that I took the seat beside him at once, and got to the Factory before the diligence.

As soon as I arrived I was shown into the waiting-room, a commodious one, with a large table in the centre, and an extensive library occupying one side of it, well stocked with a choice collection of books for the use of the employees. To me it looked more like a club-room, for the table was strewed with a number of Buenos Aires and Montevideo newspapers, and also several European periodicals and magazines. Here also stands the sideboard with samples of the product of the Factory that were exhibited at the Continental Exhibition, held in Buenos Aires in 1882. The other sides of walls are hung with maps of the estancias belonging to the company, around Fray Bentos. They comprise a good large area of fenced land, and at present some 25,000 novillos are deposited and scattered throughout the different lots. From this room branch off the offices wherein the business of the establishment is carried on. After waiting a short time here, during which Mr. Croker was advised that I wished to see him, the messenger returned with a note from him to say that I was to be sent up to the house. On arriving at the manager's dwelling-house I was met by him at the door of a small conservatory, and ushered into a sitting-room, or rather study, and here, let me say, that I was extremely gratified at the manner of my reception by him, and also by all the members of his family, to most of whom I was a perfect stranger; and to whom I am most thankful for having been the means of making the day a truly pleasant one to me.

The road from the town of Fray Bentos winds along the banks of the river. It has been made by the company at a great outlay, no doubt, for besides two bridges, and great cuttings in the cliff, they have built a high seawall and levelled the road as well. The wall is built of stone and defended by a fine row of willows, closely planted in the water to break the force of the waves.

After passing one of the bridges, we come upon the company's ground, and here we find quite a small town, all the cottages built of brick, with tile, galvanized iron and thatched roofs, all embowered in trees and runners, and kept very neat and clean. A road leads up to the Factory, which we enter by an arched gate, to the right and left of which we see a number of cottages built exactly alike, and all belonging to the company. As this is the entrance, I shall begin by trying to describe the various industrial departments as we go along:—

First comes the Laboratory, a large building apart from the others; this we did not go into, as it was closed at the time. The tinsmiths' workshop adjoins it: here are made all the tins required for Extract, tongues, &c. It is a large place, and several men are employed in it.

The foundry and blacksmiths comes next. Here all sorts of work is being done, from the most common to the finest. I was shown a beautiful little engine that was driving the turning lathes at the time. This was made here, and shows the class of men who are employed in this department.

Coming through a gate here, we come upon an immense galpone, where the killing and skinning is carried on in a sort of wholesale manner, from 1,000 to 1,100 being the usual quantity killed every day during the season, which generally lasts from December to May every year, and sometimes later, according to the condition of the stock.

"Can any one tell what the wind whistles for?" asked a young man at a pic-nic. "It whistles for the leaves to dance by," demurely replied a young lady.

LONDON LETTER.

(From our own Correspondent.)

LORD RANDOLPH ON AFFAIRS.

MARTIN TUPPER, DITTO.

Jan. 25th, 1884.

Lord Randolph Churchill's speech at Blackpool is really worth reading, and I advise you to read it in the Times or Morning Post, where you get your full four columns. He is cleverer than I thought as a light cavalry officer. He has wonderfully improved in the use of language and in the arrangement of his matter. As a piece of smart and abusive invective we have had nothing better than the speech since the days of "Dizzy." Its very shallowness gives it gleam and beauty. Its frankness and outspokenness throw a charm over its mendaciousness. Lord Randolph's bitterest political antagonist—if such a man can have antagonists—will, in reading his speech, be far more pleased than his friends. They will know that the ludicrous abuse of Mr. Gladstone and his allies will be far less serious to them than will the occasional random shot he levels at his own party be to the latter. In anathematising Tewfik, the Jews and the bondholders, and the Government policy in Egypt, he is blaspheming the saint whose grave at Hughenden in this warm winter may now be golden with primroses. The Post of this morning sees this, and expostulates with the impetuous young Lord; and the Times grimly reminds him of the remark of an old college don when presiding at an undergraduates' debating society—"remember gentlemen, that none of us are infallible; not even the youngest amongst us." But we pardon all inconsistencies for the sake of Lord Randolph's amusing picture of Radical Government by "advertisement." "We live" he says "in the age of advertisement—in the age of Holloway's pills, Coleman's mustard and Horniman's pure tea." He then goes on to describe Mr. Chamberlain's basking at Newcastle in the smiles of a live Earl—Lord Durham, a young gentleman just of age and who knows, Lord Rondolph says, as much of State affairs as Barnum's white elephant. As for Mr. Gladstone he hires a steamer. The poet Laureate adorns his suite. He lunches with the Emperor of Russia, and takes tea with the Queen of Denmark. For the purpose of recreation he has selected the felling of trees, and every afternoon the whole world is invited to assist at the crashing of some beach or oak or elm, and the forest laments that Mr. Gladstone may perspire. The parish church at Hawarden is insufficient to contain the throngs who go to hear him read the Lessons. Humble parishioners are banished to hospitable non-conformist tabernacles, in order that mankind may be present at the Prime Minister's rendering of Isaiah, Jeremiah, or the Book of Job. "This, Gentlemen," says Lord Randolph "this is the great art of advertisement." Nothing, he says, can be expected but division and anarchy from an administration that contains Lord Hartington and Mr. Chamberlain, or from a party that contains Mr. Samuel Morley and Mr. Bradlaugh—or from a hetorogeneous agglomeration of Whigs and Radicals, in which "pull devil, pull baker" is the order of the day.

The political agitation now moving the minds of all men has called forth a priest and prophet long silent—Martin Tupper. It is time we heard the voice of the seer groaning an envious bass in the gloria sung in praise of the new literary peer Lord Tennyson. What now seems to exercise the rather illogical mind of the prophet is "the Tempest on its way to Great Britain via Ireland and America, which (as the meteorologists have it), "is likely to develop dangerous energy." Mr. Tupper is of opinion that every part of our social system is sensibly fermenting with a secret spirit of revolution, and when all the great capitalists of lands and money are or ought to be trembling. At this juncture the prophet throws out a thought or two as to the real sources of the influence of such men as Parnell and Davitt and George. The "thought or two" amount to this, that by his own showing the men he names are thoroughly justified in their action, for as Tupper sayeth, the landlords are as eager to clear out the poor from their possessions as their game-keepers are to exterminate vermin. Consequently the agricultural labourer, who seems to have with his fellow-sufferer in London his own exceeding bitter cry—is forced to live in hovels where neither the decencies of life nor the possibilities of health are respected. Tupper also speaks in language dangerously near the "damnable rhetoric" of Henry George when he talks of "so many square miles of man's common heritage in our little isles of the sea are kept without inhabitants through the selfish luxuriousness of sundry dominant lords." Tupper's little remedy is that the country seats which are rapidly becoming deserted, as absenteeism more and more declares itself in England, should be reoccupied by kind and considerate squires, and Lady Bountifuls of the old school. Poor Tupper—you are not in autos. You should read the heartrending letter written by Mr. Lindsay of the Glasgow college in reference to the treatment of crofters in the Orkneys who, in obedience to the law, gave evidence before the Royal Commission appointed to inquire into the condition of the island. The poor men who did their duty in giving their evidence have been cruelly evicted and prosecuted by the agent of the landlord, one Burroughs, a Lieutenant-General and probably an English sportsman, who would reply like the rest of his tribe to Mr. Tupper, d. the poor, d. your "common heritage," d. the d. lot of you. Eh ben! nous verrons. "The sea is His, and He made it;" ergo the land is his, and he bought it. These are the sentiments of the landlord class, who for the sake of stag or pheasant drive the poor into the hovels described by Mr. Tupper; and these are the true sentiments of that Tory party of whom Lord Randolph Churchill in his peroration to an admirably clever speech at Blackpool last night says:—"Such is the Tory party of to day—it exists by the favour of no caucus, nor for the selfish interests of any class. Its motto is—of the people, for the people, by the people." unity and freedom are the beacons which shed their light around its future path, and amid all political conflict this shall be its only aim to increase and secure within imperishable walls the historic happiness of English homes." (Prolonged cheering). And Tupper's letter i.e. "hovels," appears in the same columns with this audacious and mendacious apostrophizing of "imperishable walls" and "English homes."

EDITOR'S TABLE.

Mutton is the topic of the day. We translate from the Prensa a capital article on Argentine mutton, which meat has fairly frightened the life out of our Australian competitors in London. Many people think, and we agree with them, that Argentine mutton will very soon be a prime favourite with the British public, as it is small and sweet, like Wicklow and Welsh mutton, the dearest and most prized by epicures at home. Our Australian visitors went to Campana on Sunday, to see the Drabble Meat Factory, and were very highly pleased with what they saw. They will leave in a few days for a look at the camps, and we feel sure that they will return fully convinced that their Australian pasturage cannot hold a farthing candle to ours.

The Cano Circus troupe will debut towards the end of this week in the Politeama. We hear it is an excellent company.

There was a nice shower of rain in the small hours on Sunday, and the temperature yesterday was very enjoyable; still estancieros would like more rain.

Father Jordan, the great pulpit orator, preached in the Cathedral on Sunday night. In the course of his brilliant sermon he eloquently denounced Carnival and its corrupting effect on all classes of society.

Dr. Rowson has been named by the National Government to represent this country at the scientific Congresses at Amsterdam and the Hague. No better man for the task than the eminent doctor—the right man in the right place.

Signor Lagomarsino, the well known brewer, died at San Fernando on Saturday night. He was much esteemed. He it was who founded the brewery now belonging to Hammer & Co.

The mutton news from San Nicolas is of the most cheering kind. Messrs Terrason, of that town, who shipped 11,000 frozen sheep to England in the Loch Ard, have received letters stating that the result has been splendid. The meat arrived in magnificent condition, and 1000 carcases were sold at once at prices equal to those for Australian meat. Several carcases were sent to Paris and other cities in the North of France, and even still higher prices were obtained for them. In view of this brilliant success the Saladero Amestoy will be at once transformed into a frozen meat factory, which will make two such establishments in the Plate. "Quien sabe" if, before a year is about, we may not see half a dozen more started. If the estancieros only had the pluck to look after their own interests in this question, we might count on a score being opened in a very short time.

Saturday's double number of the Mariposa is very good, especially the political cut representing President Roca in Carnival costume, with a half used "pomo" marked "Presidencia," in his hand, and a lot of street Arabs, likenesses of all the candidates for the next term, yelling "A mi Señor; lo que lo concluye, demelo!" There are other political squibs equally good.

The die, or rather the decree, is cast. The Provincial Government, Legislature and everything and everybody in the remotest degree connected with them must all be settled in La Plata on or before the 31st inst. We weep for them. Should the winter prove a wet one, we shudder audibly at the contemplation of what is before them.

There are 700 'espedientes' before the different Committees of the Municipality. This will keep them going well into the autumn.

A joint-stock company has been formed to build at La Plata a theatre to hold 1,500 persons. We suppose Patti will be engaged to open the place. Would not something in the Alcazar line be more congenial to the present denizens of the new city?

There was a fight on Sunday night in the streets between two 'comparsas,' one of which ran away and lived to fight another day.

The Tribuna Nacional, in referring to the will of the late much lamented Rev. Mr. Lett being before the Civil Court for probate, says that it is written in Irish, his native tongue. If so, there may be some difficulty in translating it.

There should be some law to force owners of houses to keep their properties in repair. The horrible accident in Conceicao's 'almacen' on Saturday would not have occurred if the landlord had done what his duty and interest alike demanded. How many hundreds of houses are there in this city built over old cesspools, where a similar catastrophe may occur at any moment?

Unfortunate Rosarinos! The Telephone up there is now kept working night and day, and talking in their sleep is spreading rapidly amongst the inhabitants, especially the ladies.

The papers are filled with nothing else but the wind-up of Carnival, the last Progreso ball, the complete failure of the Corso, &c. We shall hear of nothing but Carnival for a week yet, although now it is supposed to be solemnly and finally disposed of. We only wish it were.

A grand ball at the residence of an English merchant in Montevideo is announced for next Thursday night. It is expected to be a very grand affair, and several fashionable bachelor friends here are going down to it.

There was an Electric Light trial last night, by a French company, in Sommer's famous hat shop in Calle Rivadavia. The E.L. is pushing ahead in the Plate.

The departure of Mr. P. Trelles, who sailed yesterday for Europe, on board the Porteña, was the occasion of a great manifestation. The southern corner of the Recoba Vieja, not the Mole, was the scene of this manifestation, and a very large and representative crowd of friends and well-wishers met to give him and his family a parting farewell. We noticed among others H.E, the Minister of Interior and family, Dr. Quintana, Dr. Lucas Gonzalez and family, Mr. Hume C.E., Dr. Alveyra etc. etc, two special tramway cars had been specially retained to take the party to the Boca where a small steamer was in waiting to take the travellers on board the Porteña. The finally parting was very affecting and we heartily join in the general wish that Mr Trelles and his charming family may have a prosperous and peaceful voyage.

During the Corso on Sunday night a French lady was thrown down by one of the carriages, at the corner of Victoria and Piedras. The wheels grazed, even touched, her forehead, and inflicted a slight bruize, happily of the most minute character. The great wonder is, how few accidents there have been during Carnival. They are, certainly, strikingly few.

We had the pleasure yesterday of a visit from Major Tisdel, who has just returned from the United States. He describes the quarantine arrangements at Flores Island as disgraceful; nothing but beef and soup and soup and beef; not even enough water to drink. The day the Neva's passengers (133) left the Lazaretto they got nothing whatever to eat or drink. This is a nice state of affairs, truly,—just the same old two and tuppence of ten years, in spite of all the fine plans, projects and promises to give over treating ocean passengers worse than dogs.

Mr. Thomas Drysdale will leave for England on the 15th. He took leave of the children of the Scotch Sunday School on Sunday last, and gave each of the children who had not won prizes a little book. Mr. Dodds presented the books, with an encouraging remark to each of the recipients.

The Rev. James Smith will preach at the Estanzuela, Colonia, on Sunday next at 11 a.m. There will be the usual service and Sunday School in town, as the Rev. Mr. Fleming is expected back from the Interior on Saturday.

We deeply sympathise with Mr. F. Allen of Colonia and his family on the death of his amiable daughter, whose demise we announce to-day. The deceased young lady was only 18 years of age, yet remarable and beloved by all for her virtues and good works in the cause of charity and religion.

Governor Roach left town yesterday for another scamper to La Plata, Castelli, Tuyu, etc. H.E. wont be back for three weeks.

The Lord Mayor left for Montevideo yesterday evening.

General Osborn, U.S. Minister, contemplates, we hear, a trip to Asuncion very shortly.

CARNIVAL.

"A time to dance" (Ecclesiastics iii. 4.)

To the Editor of the Standard.

Dear Sir,

I notice in your issue of the 1st a communication signed "Spectator," in which, whilst expressing a moderate "quantum" of the now-a-days fashionable disgust and horror at the time-honoured institution of Carnival, he proceeds to ask some questions which, with your kind permission, I will endeavour to answer.

In order to do this as briefly as possible I will first state the questions to which I refer, and then reply to them seriatim.

I. What is the meaning of the humanizing Christian recreation of the Church fetes of Carnival?

II. Are there any orthodox pastimes, of which the Church approves, for Carnival?

III. Is not the existence of this wild buffoonery a proof in itself of the negative influence of the Church?

In reply, I would say that the meaning of "the Church fetes of Carnival" is simply an acknowledgment of the fact that the user thereof does not know what he is talking about.

The very fact that during the days of Carnival and on the following Wednesday special expiatory services are held by way of reparation for the excesses committed during Carnival, shows that the Church does not countenance excesses of the institution and does what she has the right to do in order to discourage their practice among her professed children.

As for those who may sneer—as unhappily many do—at these expiatory offerings of prayer and humiliation, I can only call their attention to the practice of the holy Job, as recorded in the Bible, where we are told that "when the days of their [Job's sons and daughters] feasting were gone about, Job sent to them and sanctified them; and rising up early offered holocausts for every one of them; for he said, 'lest, perhaps, my sons have sinned.'" (Job i. 5)

II. Are there any orthodox pastimes? etc. Not necessarily connected with Carnival, but with all times. It has ever been the mind of the Church to encourage and promote innocent pleasures among her children, who, of all men, have the greatest occasion to be joyous and light-hearted. Hence the feasts of the Church outnumber her fasts, and the apostolic precept of "Rejoice, and again I say unto you, rejoice," is echoed by word and deed through all ages, in her offices of praise, in her abundant graces, and in her wise and beneficent direction of those who submit to her mild yoke.

The Church, whilst always endowed with a deep spirit of mortification on account of the sins and excesses of the world, has never, in any way, countenanced that sourness which was the leading feature in the religion of Cromwell's Roundheads, but has rather encouraged popular gaiety and invited her faithful children to manifest the joyousness of their religion in their lives.

III. "Is not the existence of this wild buffoonery a proof in itself of the negative influence of the Church?" Such a question, Mr. Editor, is so puerile that it scarcely merits any answer. Seeing, however, that others would fain associate the excesses of Carnival and the austerities of Lent, I will endeavour to reply to this also.

It proves nothing of the kind.

In the first place, the wildest of the wild buffoonery is tame when compared with the orgies indulged in among those everywhere who will not have the Church to rule over them.

In the second place, no devout Catholics take any part in the objectionable practices of Carnival. It should be borne in mind that the population of Buenos Ayres contains, besides thousands of persons of no religion, other thousands of every shade of religious opinion, many of whom join in and greatly enhance the wildness of the aforesaid buffoonery. Of course, the devout persons of all sects, the same as those of the Catholic Church, abstain during Carnival, as at all other seasons of the year, from everything like excesses and buffoonery.

In conclusion, Mr. Editor, having borne with me so far, allow me to say a word on the other side of the question.

It should be our endeavour rather to weed out the objectionable features of Carnival than to join our voices with those who would hound it out of existence as a thing incompatible with our "high intellectual culture." The majority of us, in our present state, have a decent modicum of "matter" combined with our "mind," and whilst I would not say a word to induce disembodied spirits to take part in the amusements of Carnival, I think all right-thinking men ought to give their influence, not towards the abolition, but towards the amelioration and purification of the only truly popular festival we have in this prosy, money-grubbing old city.

Apologising for having taken up so much of your valuable space,

I am,

Yours truly,

A. J. L. W.

LEAVES HAVE THEIR TIME TO fall, but the hair of our heads, if properly attended, should last a lifetime. Promote its healthy condition and nutriment, and the desired end will be accomplished by means of the Oriental tonic. Vigor and beauty are preserved by its constant use, since it acts as a healthy stimulant upon the roots and fibres which absorb it.

Ladies will find it the best shield against baldness and gray hair, besides it imparts a beautiful brilliance to the tresses, and for gentlemen's beards it is a most excellent article, so agreeable and useful in keeping them soft and silky.

Cedulas A	100
Cedulas B	88
National Bank Shares	125½

The week has opened with a rather firmer stock market, prices maintained all along the line, and one great bull buying all the Cedulas in the market at 88. Bank Shares are stiff and quiet, and the payment of the dividend seems to have improved them. Still, for those who stand back from the ring there is a stand-from-under feeling, and it is awfully hard to get outsiders to go into anything at the moment. People with much ready money—and there are many—are perplexed what to put it into. They want gold stocks, but, except Transandine Telegraph and Italian Bank shares, all the rest are National Dollar paying stocks; and as for lands, they consider the far outside lands too high, and the near outside lands are not for sale. Thus money is both abundant and scarce in the market at present. In certain quarters it is exceedingly tight, whilst in other circles it can be had at 6[illegible] per cent., which is under the Provincial Bank rate.

There is still much going on in the Bolsa in lands; and we hear of one party who is on the look-out for a block of 100 leagues to buy, and which the brokers say cannot be got. Still other brokers assure us that the far outside lands are very much offered, and there are more sellers than buyers. A leading landbroker says that good 'pasto fuerte' lands, not very far out, are well maintained, and he even thinks rising in price; but they must be lands in settled and populated districts, with neighbours around, and which can be easily stocked, fenced and settled on. Several new buyers of lands are in the market, but as yet we have heard of no sales.

The sales at the ring this morning were very slow up to one o'clock, except in Cedulas, which threaten to be more active this month than National Bank Shares. In other stocks there is not a particle doing. Roads and Bridges are offered, but we believe nothing over par can be obtained. There are buyers of Italian Bank Shares, but holders refuse to sell under 150. Nat. Bank Certificates " buyers at 140 (with dividend). New and Old Bolsa and Gas Shares are also offering, but as yet we have heard of no transactions. National Land Boletos, nothing doing in them; said to be worth 60 to 70,000, but very few in market.

There was a very large crowd of shareholders at the National Bank to-day collecting the dividend, which has spread a good round sum of fresh money on the market.

The shareholders of the Flores and Gauna Road Company are also collecting their dividend, which will be very agreeable news for those who have not seen the notice; we are not aware, however, if the notice has been published in any paper.

Consignees of goods by the wrecked barque British Crown will be interested in a notice, which we publish in another column, from Lloyd's agent.

The fall in jerked beef, which was attributed to a bearish speculation, has been checked, and some of the Uruguay saladeristas have cornered the bear speculators by chartering vessels and shipping the beef to Havannah on their own account; beef there, according to latest telegrams, is quoted 19, and not 17 as supposed. It is more than probable we shall have beef here in this market selling at 40 rls. soon.

We regret to say that the cable between Pernambuco and St. Vincent has been interrupted since Sunday night. We are not aware if the break is a serious one, but suppose that our next telegrams will be by way of Galveston.

We hear very great complaints about the continued checks and delays the works of the Transandine Railway meet; both on the Western Railway and on the Andine Railway, there is a block up for the want of waggons, and the Transandine works cannot get out materials fast enough; the earthworks are now made four leagues beyond Junin, there are 500 men at work, and we trust that the materials will be forwarded without any further delay.

The following were the sales at the ring during offical hours:—

Cedulas—
For cash A 3,000 at 100
For cash B 50,000 at 87⅞
For March 31st F 255,000 at 87⅞-88-87⅞-88
For cash F 19,300 at 88
Sales, 297,300

National Bank Shares—
For March 31st 200 at 125½

The death of Mr. Toribio Achaval was announced to-day, deceased was a well known estanciero and property holder and connected with some of the oldest families of this city. For the last few months he has been in very bad health, he died this morning at his quinta on the Flores Road near Almagro and his funeral takes place to-morrow evening

Mr. Sommer's hats shop will be the rendezvous to-night of all the science, art and hant ton of the city, to witness Mr Traver's experimental electric light which in anticipation we pronounce a success. Shedding a new refulgence on those beautiful white hats for which those premises have justly become so famed.

The s.s. Patagonia from Chile has arrived at Montevideo from to time, the political news she brings is important, but it is thought she may have brought bills of exchange for this market. Mr. Sarmiento's reception has been all that could be desired. President Iglesias has named Sr. Paz Soldan Peruvian Minister to Uruguay and Sr. Umaine Minister to Buenos Aires.

Telegrams from the north camps at Melincue, Venado Tuerto, Loreto, Gainza and Lincoln and Rosario; the estancieros are all in the happiest humour at such a downpour and the camps cows and sheep are in splendid condition.

Advices from the river Colorado announce a great camp fire on Luro's land; the Commandante at the pass on the river turned out with all his men to put it out. At Tandil also they have had unusually large fires and on some well known estancias. We suppose however now the fire is out as it has rained so heavily.

We hear with much pleasure that there is a probability of our soon having a Dutch colony in San Luis. Mr. Paats, who is in Europe, is getting it up.

Parties anxious to walk into a splendid estancia in the South, magnificent house, 14 leagues land, 25,000 sheep and 14,000 head of cattle, should interview Mr W. Downes, who has charge of the business; the land will not be sold and only rented, as the owner is about to make a trip to Europe.

Discount brokers say there is more money in the market, but very little disposition by the Banks to give out money at present. First-class business pagares are easily done on the Banks, but land bills maturing at long dates are offered cheap, but not easy to discount.

The sale of 1,700 head of cattle 'al corte' in the South, partido Suarez, is reported at 170%.

The Provincial Senate is summoned for next Wednesday, when the removal of the Banks to La Plata will be the order of the day and some other matters of importance. Governor Rocha has gone South to look up the site of a new town and will not be back for a week.

The Galveston telegraph line, we regret to say, is also interrupted between Callao and Molendo. Thus, we are now completely shut off from all news from Europe, except by steamer arriving at Brazil.

At afternoons there was a sudden jump in the Cedula market and prices walked up to 88⅜ at which rate several lots were sold, the market ruled most excited. The news spread like wild fire that the Bank ships 3 millions pats Cedulas to Europe and will draw against them for the mail. Another piece of good news for the stock was that already 20 applications are sent into Bank to pay the coupones in Europe, upon the whole the market presented a very wild appearance, too National Dollars were paid for rights to deliver 100,000 Cedulas at end of month at 87. The National Bank Share market rules also very excited and looks upwards. It seems the fall to 125½ on the last days of the month was made by a lot of speculators who borrowed from a well known broker on high terms 2,000 shares, these they flung on the market to produce the fall, but to-day when the affair was known and talked of its produced a reaction. Spite of low exchange, tight money, Bank Presidential meetings and conflicting politics the stocks are rising and the bulls hold the market.

To-morrow the great alpargato manufactory of Etchegaray and Frazer will be inaugurated at the fabric in Santa Lucia; a new industry for the country.

In wools a good business doing, artistes retired. Export houses doing a large business, splendid clip wool at both stations.

Sales of coal—Taunton from Glasgow, sold at 9½ nacionales inside, 800 tons.

Ameer arrived from Glasgow sold at 8½ fuertes outside, and part 10½ fuertes inside, 1200 tons.

Discount brokers report a hard market, banks for their customers discounting at 7 to 8.

Exchange firm but dull, no steamer to-day, drawers offering 47⅞. On Paris 5.02, and on Antwerp 5.04, only a small amount passed.

The following sales of real estate were registered on last Saturday:—

In Navarro, 118 hect., 12 areas and 50 cents., 80,000 $

In La Plata, 600 sq. mts., 205 m/n

In La Plata, 11 lots., 4,800 sq. mts., 48,336 currency.

Mr. Herm. Altgelt, in his valuable "Revista Semanal de Productos Agricolas" under date March 1st, 1881, gives the following:—

"Arrivals during the week—

Wheat....	1,649,184 kilos
Flour	440,082 kilos
Maize	213,970 kilos
Linseed ...	107,340 kilos
Hay.....	2,992 bales"

The conference held on Saturday at the Minister of Hacienda's Department, at which the Presidents of both National and Provincial Banks attended, is the talk of the whole market, and although the object in view in calling that conference was most meritorious, still in the opinion of many the cure is worse than the disease, and the Banks show their hands too much either by assisting at such conferences or giving to the proceedings undue publicity. The little spicy newspaper, the Figaro, was the first to tell the public how the wind blew between the two monarch Banks, and the Prensa on Sunday gives a very full explanation of the whole business; our colleague says:—The rivalry between the two Banks is each day increasing; on one day last week a broker applied at the Oficina de Cambios of the Provincial Bank to exchange National Bank notes for gold, the amount being 2½ millions National dollars, which was exchanged in order to pay for bills of exchange on Europe. The Provincial Bank sent the next day the notes to the National Bank to be exchanged for gold. A few days afterwards precisely the same operation was made; on other occasions gold was demanded from the Provincial Bank and checks given on private bank; the gold was given, and the next day these checks when presented at the private banks were paid in National Bank notes. Mr. Uriburu President of the Provincial Bank, at once sent for the Managers of these banks and closed up their accounts current in gold, informing them that it didn't suit the Whoever wants a stiff fit of colic should read the report of Mr. Arana, the City Analyst, who has been working away like a brick for the past month, and examined no less than 199 different articles of food and drink. We wont harrow our readers' stomachs by quoting too minutely from the report, but may say that hams and beer are the only things Mr Arana found averagely good. As for the wines, out of 115 samples, only 25 were good; liqueurs only 3 good out of 37; and so on. Nothing is said about twigs and chicory, alias tea and coffee, but no doubt, when their turn comes, they will be found on a par with the rest.

The Prefect of the Seine has sent Lord Mayor Alvear a present of a lot of books and statistics bearing on the government of Paris. Dr. Pellegrini August, aught them out.

The papars all say that the National Provincial Banks have embraced The new Twenty or other with effusion (in the per- this 18th in- The rapi[d] of their respective and respected raised willsidents) and that they wont fight Buenos Ai forms the more. So best. The Finance Friday Minister, Dr. Plaza, brought about good plans desirable consummation. tions, pe We read in a Swiss newspaper the xing. following advertisement: 'Wanted, a servant girl to cook and mind the children.'" We can well fancy that in the Cannibal Islands a person answering this description would not be long out of situation.

A San Juan paper says that Mr. José V. Moreno, partner of the late Senator Gomez, has handed over the profits of the business to the widow of his murdered friend. This is rather a rare act of generosity.

Telegrams from Montevideo yesterday say that Carnival wound up there in a most dreary manner. A subscriber Mr who arrived on Saturday from the ister city tells us that the bottom is out of the bathing season. Very few people Enroft there, and they all take their dip for M sadly, as if it was a duty rather than a Ho pleasure.

A little knowledge, especially of English, is a dangerous thing. The printers and proof-readers of a morning colleague make the following truly awful hash of poor Tommy Moore's beautiful lines:—
